ELECTRIC BIRDS OF POTHAKUDI

KARTHIKA NAÏR AUTHOR
JOËLLE JOLIVET ILLUSTRATOR

Winner of the 2023 Prix Felipé for Ecological Children's Literature.

Inspired by a true story about a family of birds nesting in a village's streetlamp, this poetic picture book is a moving exploration of community, solidarity, ecology and the preservation of wildlife.

Karuppu Raja dearly loves his small village of Pothakudi. He takes great pride in being responsible for its only source of light, switching the circuit breaker on every night to power the streetlamps.

But one evening, he discovers a bird's nest buried deep inside the box. He's faced with a terrible dilemma: to turn the switch on and destroy the nest, or to leave the village in darkness until the fledgelings are born.

Karthika Naïr is a poet, playwright, fabulist and dance scenarist.

Joëlle Jolivet is an illustrator who works mostly in linocut. Her books have been published internationally. She lives and works in Ivry-sur-Seine, France.

Raja stared at the switchboard for a long moment, his eyebrows creased in cautious thought. Then, he placed out his trouble phone and took several photos so that he could write the evening spreading around him and recapturing the last rays of daylight.

Nothing a quick flick under his breath, Raja sent those photos off to the villagers, complete with the captions.

"Phone of Mrs. Vichay inside the nest," had been Mr. V.K. humming at the entrance of the box.

Then, he figured, would explain why he could not turn on the streetlamps tonight.

As Raja turned home, he took him that people in houses where anybody had a trouble phone wouldn't know what had happened, and might react, at the strange black-out. Some of them might even get out to switch on the streetlamps themselves!

Like Saina, the aged treat never return anyone, even Raja's parents, didn't Saina Prati - the had become grandfather to the whole village.

© Karthika Naïr, with illustrations by Joëlle Jolivet.

Saina Prati, though born with age to had her original bright, one beautiful work, starting up after feeding the neighborhood cows, who looked to her place every evening. Nothing occurred for ever. "What, now, what happened? What, get some food and into that society before you trouble a word?"

"Looking into the bin, try and manage make Saina Prati had to deal on one a handful of red soil. She, then, enough to read out his evening's adventures into her ears. He had just finished when the phone rang, the screen lighting up in warning. His hand went up, right down into the pit of his stomach.

"Oh, no, Deysh appa has called a village meeting tomorrow afternoon to remove the nest!"

"What, what will you do about it? Saina Prati, you can't let that ghost of a lizard and his friends climb the poor bins out of their bins, now?"

"What do you say, Prati? They would have to see. I have seen that a day to see the nest."

"You're a good lad, Raja. But not every battle can be fought alone. One might can be enough, if you get your friends together! You've got friends in every house. So why this thing you keep saying over every minute can be saved for once, huh?" Saina Prati grabbed her hand with her three remaining teeth as she pulled her back at his trouble phone.

"When he still looked downcast, she added, "Saina Prati, you can speak to those fighting for the new birds, right?"

Fired up by Saina Prati's reminder, Raja shot off a second set of messages. His time fell his cousin, friends, and colleagues in the village. He asked them to come to the switchboard early next morning with their teenage children, right after sunrise.

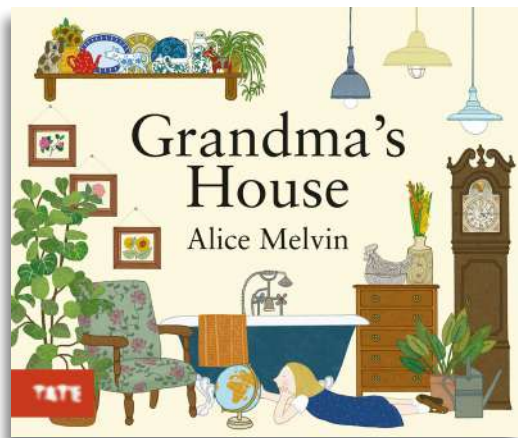

What happened early next morning?

Oh, that's a mystery. Nobody ever found out exactly what they discussed that morning. Only the switchboard - which was very good at keeping secrets - and Mr. and Mrs. V.K., who were otherwise occupied, combined the words of the village.

As they drew closer, the sky became a storm, like of wings and flaps, a storm of white and black, yellow and white, black, gold, grey. It bright morning ends. Blue smoke. A downpour of blue smoke. Birds after birds occupied how to drop rice seeds out to the fields, like the wings, open mouth of the earth.

THE GIFT

JII & NIKOS PARK TREPKAS

Vividly illustrated in a style that combines pop art with minhwa (traditional Korean folk art), this engaging fable explores gratitude and reminds us to appreciate the beauty in life.

Tired of constantly working hard, a poor painter encounters the legendary Dokkaebi who gifts him the life he has always dreamed of as a rich and famous artist.

But the painter soon learns that his gifts come at a price and perhaps his new perfect life is not all it seems to be...

Jihyun Park Trepkas, the creative force behind the illustrations, draws inspiration from her South Korean heritage, holding a Master's degree in Illustration from Kingston University. Enriched by studies in Floral Arrangement Design in Tokyo, Jihyun's deep connection with nature adds a unique dimension to her artistic journey.

Nikolaos Park Trepkas is a Greek writer, actor, director, scriptwriter and painter, born in Germany, raised in Greece, and immersed in Multimedia Design in Denmark. A decade ago, Jihyun and Nikolaos fell in love in London, and have since fused their hearts and creative souls into narratives of shared growth, learning and storytelling.

RECENT HIGHLIGHTS

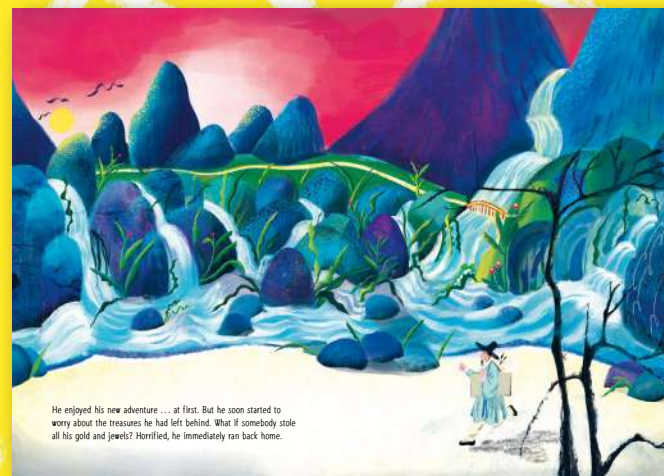

Suddenly, a crude voice boomed through the air. "Who is making that noise? Your complaints are hurting my ears."

Standing in front of the painter was a massive, hulking creature. His belly puffed out and he smelt like old, unwashed socks. The painter almost swooned from fright. "Who are you?"

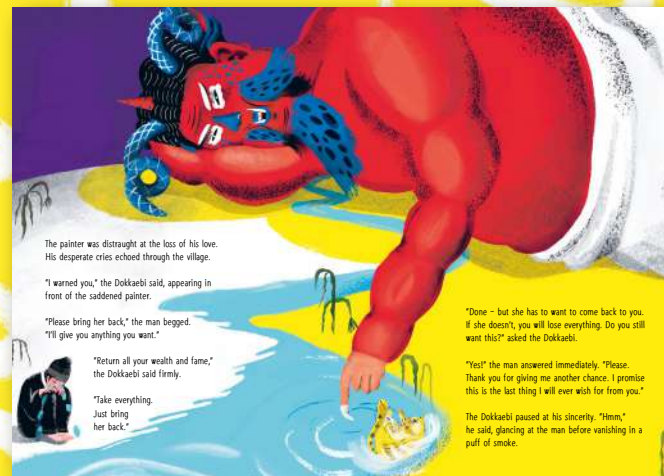

"Pitiful little man, I am the legendary Dokkaebi!" said the creature. "If I grant your wish to be a famous artist, will you stop whining?"

"Yes," the man trembled.

The Dokkaebi shook his club in the air twice and said, "Done! Now, stop crying and go look outside." He then vanished in a puff of smoke.

He enjoyed his new adventure ... at first. But he soon started to worry about the treasures he had left behind. What if somebody stole all his gold and jewels? Horrified, he immediately ran back home.

The painter was distraught at the loss of his love. His desperate cries echoed through the village.

"I warned you," the Dokkaebi said, appearing in front of the saddened painter.

"Please bring her back," the man begged. "I'll give you anything you want."

"Return all your wealth and fame," the Dokkaebi said firmly.

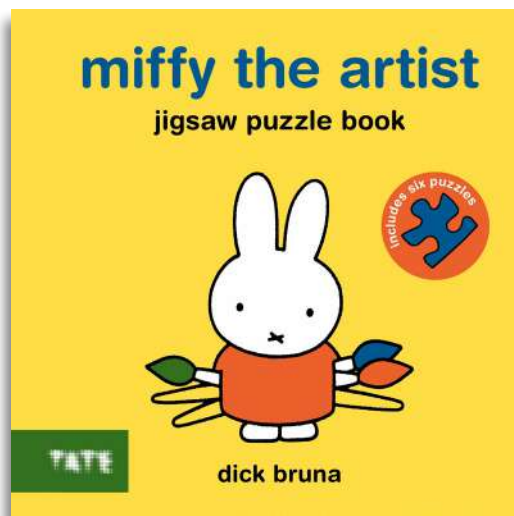

"Take everything. Just bring her back."

"Done - but she has to want to come back to you. If she doesn't, you will lose everything. Do you still want this?" asked the Dokkaebi.

"Yes!" the man answered immediately. "Please. Thank you for giving me another chance. I promise this is the last thing I will ever wish for from you."

The Dokkaebi paused at his sincerity. "Hm," he said, glancing at the man before vanishing in a puff of smoke.
